Coronavirus disease 19 (COVID-19) is a newly identified pandemic infectious disease. To date, several points remain unsolved, mainly concerning the contribution of the virus in determining the lethality of the infection and the pathogenic mechanisms. This Research Project will focus on an accurate autoptic study of positive

SARS-CoV-2 patients who died in the Civil Hospital - University of Padua. For each autopsy, macroscopic and microscopic lesions will be classified in order to identify the cause of death and the presence of any comorbidities. This will be helpful to define the role of both the infection and any other pathologies, thus leading to a better understanding of the SARS-CoV-2 mechanism of action. In this context, the cultural and molecular tests will represent an important complement. The morphological findings will also be correlated with the clinical characteristics and treatments that will be carefully collected for each patient.
